- (e) Environment – we are committed to acting responsibly towards the environment.

4 Our ethical standards and policies

4.1 Conflicts of interest

A conflict of interest occurs if your loyalties are divided, for example if you or your family or friends have a personal or commercial interest which may interfere, or be perceived to interfere, with the performance of your duties and responsibilities to the Company, making it difficult to perform your role objectively and effectively.

The existence of a conflict of interest is not uncommon. What matters is how we manage the conflict.

To safeguard the confidence of the Company's key stakeholders in the Company's integrity, it is paramount that you do not allow personal interests or the interests of family or friends to conflict with the interests of the Company. You must avoid participating in decisions and activities which may conflict, or be perceived to conflict, with your duties and responsibilities to the Company.

Generally, you are precluded from approving or administering business arrangements such as contracts between the Company and a member of your immediate family or with a company, firm, or individual employing a member of your immediate family in activities under your administration. If you are a Director and the Board decides that you may properly supply goods or services on commercially acceptable terms to the Company, details will be provided in the annual Directors' Report and Notes to the Financial Statements.

You must not enter into any arrangement or participate in any activity that would conflict with the Company's best interests or would be likely to negatively affect the Company's reputation. You must avoid acquiring any business interests or participating in any business activity outside the Company which would tend to create an excessive demand upon your time and attention or create any distraction during working hours.

You must not be involved in any other company or business or organisation as director, agent, employee or consultant, whether paid or unpaid, if there is a possibility that your personal interests could conflict, or be perceived to conflict, with those of the Company unless you obtain approval first from your manager or the Secretary or the Board (if you are a Director).

If you receive approval to act on the Board of an external company or organisation, you will advise the Secretary promptly of any changes to relevant interests such as directorships, partnerships and holdings in securities. The Secretary will inform all Board members and the regulatory authorities if required. Directors will normally be advised at the next meeting, but more urgently if appropriate to the circumstances. Relevant interests are confirmed annually in writing to the Secretary prior to inclusion in the Directors' Report.

If you are involved in a conflict or possible conflict, or become aware of a conflict, you must tell your manager or the Secretary or the Board (if you are a Director) as soon as possible.

4.2 Opportunities, benefits and ownership of work

You must not use Company property (including intellectual property), information, your position or opportunities which arise from these to improperly gain benefit for yourself or for another party.

You have an obligation to avoid all financial, business and other arrangements which may be opposed to the interests of the Company, or which may place you in a competitive position with the Company.

The product of any work performed while you are with the Company, or on behalf of the Company, or using Company property (including all intellectual property rights created in connection with that work) belongs to the Company.

4.3 Anti-bribery and gifts

A number of countries, including Australia, have strict laws against bribery and corruption. The anti-bribery laws of some countries including Australia, the United States and United Kingdom can apply to things done in other countries (ie have wide-reaching extra-territorial effect). We must comply with and uphold all laws against bribery, corruption and related conduct applying to the Company in all the jurisdictions where the Company operates.

Accordingly, the Company has a strict policy not to offer secret commissions or bribes to further its business interests. Depending on the circumstances, facilitation payments may breach anti-bribery laws.

Naturally, you must not accept any money or opportunity or other benefit which could be interpreted as an inducement, secret commission or bribe. Care must be exercised in accepting hospitality, entertainment or gifts over and above that required for the normal conduct of business or which may compromise your impartiality.

Decisions in the course of your work must be objective and based solely upon the best interests of the Company. They should never be influenced by any consideration of personal gain or gain to any personal associate (eg friend or relative).

We are committed to adopting effective systems to counter bribery and related improper conduct and to monitoring and enforcing these systems. From time to time, we may issue further guidance regarding what is acceptable in the normal course, what you can do with senior manager or Board approval and what is prohibited.

You may also seek further information or clarification from your manager, the Secretary, legal counsel, the Board (if you are a Director) or other relevant advisor.

4.4 Dealings with politicians and government officials

All dealings with politicians and government officials which relate to the Company and its business activities must be conducted at arm's length and with the utmost professionalism, to avoid any perception of attempts to gain advantage or to improperly influence the outcome of an official decision.

You must not make any donation or other financial contribution to any political party or candidate for an election or sponsor any organisations (other than in a purely personal capacity) without seeking and obtaining prior approval from the Secretary.

4.5 Confidentiality

It may include business strategies, marketing and sales plans, competitive analysis, financial plans and forecasts, customer or employee information, supplier information and pricing. Each of the parties expects the confidential nature of the information they have given in good faith to be respected.

You must keep confidential information acquired while you are with the Company, or acting on behalf of the Company, confidential, even after you leave or cease your engagement with the Company.

In conversations with customers or other staff members and when on the telephone, care must be taken to prevent outsiders from overhearing confidential or personal information. Information should not be divulged over the telephone unless the identity of the caller and his or her right to receive the information are definitely established. Particular care should be taken in answering enquiries, and data given must be limited to that permitted by standard Company practice. Appropriate legal advice should be obtained where doubt exists.

You must not access or request or make improper use of or transfer or disclose confidential information to anyone else except as required by your position or as authorised or legally required. If it inadvertently comes into your possession it should be returned immediately.

If you are required by an authority to provide confidential information which has not been otherwise authorised, you must notify the Secretary.

4.6 Privacy

You must respect and safeguard the privacy of personal information held by the Company regarding its clients, customers, suppliers, employees and others. If you have access to this information, you must ensure that it is collected, kept, disclosed, handled and used in a manner that complies with the Privacy Act 1998 (Cth), any other privacy and data protection laws that may apply and the Company policy on privacy.

If you refer to the Company, its staff, products or services, its competitors, and/or other business related issues when you are using a Social Media platform in a personal capacity, you must:

- (a) ensure that readers of your posts cannot misconstrue your personal comments as representing an official Company position. You must not imply that you are authorised to speak on the Company's behalf. The Company recommends that you use a disclaimer to ensure that your stated views and opinions are understood to be your own and not those of the Company;
- (b) not knowingly use the identity of another Company staff member or a staff member of a Company business partner or competitor (including name or variation of a name); and
- (c) consider whether it is appropriate to accept customers, suppliers or competitors as "friends" on Facebook or other Social Media sites. If in doubt, consult your manager.

Where local laws, regulations, or customs differ from this Code, you must apply this Code or local requirements, whichever sets the higher standard of behaviour.

Ignorance of the law or having a good intention does not excuse your obligation to comply. You must participate in relevant compliance training programs offered by the Company.
